1 Northfield Lane, Horbury, Wakefield, WF4 5DW

For Sale Freehold Offers In The Region Of £495,000

Enjoying a large corner plot position is this three bedroomed Grade II listed detached cottage, formerly the home of the Architect John Carr, dating back to 1739. The property is in the much desired area of Horbury town centre and sits on substantial grounds extending towards 1/3 of an acre, offering further potential to build/develop subject to consent.

The property boasts plenty of character and original features throughout, briefly comprises of the rear porch, entrance hall, kitchen, downstairs w.c., living room and dining room. The first-floor landing leads to three double bedrooms and the house bathroom/w.c. Outside to the front, double timber gates provide access onto an L-shaped tarmac driveway furthered by a single detached garage. A Yorkshire stone paved pathway leads through arched trees to the attractive garden with raised patio area, perfect for al fresco dining. There is a large Yorkshire stone paved driveway furthering the off-road parking accessed via double timber gates to the side of the property with a second garage with timber doors

The property is within walking distance to the local amenities and schools within the sought after village of Horbury, with main bus routes running to and from Wakefield city centre. The M1 motorway is only a short distance away, perfect for the commuter looking to travel further afield.

An ideal opportunity for the working couple or family to acquire this fantastic spacious property offering a wealth of charm and character throughout, therefore an early viewing comes recommended.
