Inkberrow is one of the largest villages in Worcestershire nestling between two hills on the A422, Inkberrow occupies an ideal rural location between Worcester (12 miles), Alcester (6 miles), Pershore (10 miles) and Evesham (8 miles) with public transport links to all towns.

Inkberrow also comprises the hamlets of Little Inkberrow, Holberron Green and Morton-under-Hill. The village has spectacular views to Bredon Hill and the Malvern Hills, and on clear days to the Black Mountains in Wales, making it an ideal location for trips to the Cotswolds, Birmingham, Wales, and the West Country. The landscape is ideal for walking on the many footpaths around the village, cycling along the lanes, rambling, or horse-riding on the numerous bridleways.

Inkberrow is often thought to be the model for Ambridge, the setting of BBC Radio 4's long-running series The Archers. In particular, The Bull, the fictional Ambridge pub, is supposed to be based on The Old Bull in Inkberrow. There is one other pub in the village, a shop, doctors surgery and school.
