

1, Brunton House Scotforth Road, Lancaster, LA1 4TU

£139,000

A charming one-bedroom ground-floor apartment situated within the historic Brunton House, brimming with delightful period features and boasting an exceptionally spacious bedroom.

The property offers breathtaking panoramic views stretching across the Lake District mountains, picturesque Morecambe Bay, and the stunning surrounding countryside. An exceptional home full of character, history, and natural beauty.

Quietly tucked away within one of Lancaster's distinguished historic buildings, this distinctive property effortlessly blends heritage charm with contemporary living. Ideal for first-time buyers, those looking to downsize, or as a rewarding holiday let opportunity, it's a remarkable chance to own part of Lancaster's rich history.

The city of Lancaster is just moments away, boasting superb educational facilities—including the highly-regarded Lancaster Girls' and Boys' Grammar schools—as well as an enticing mix of high street shops, outstanding restaurants, and a bustling local market. Additionally, the beautiful Williamson Park is within easy walking distance, perfect for leisurely strolls and enjoying green spaces.

The property is one of 12 flats in Brunton House, a converted Victorian building which was built in 1852 as a residence for the Dalton family of Lancaster. The house was designed by famous architect Joseph Hansom, who also created the Hansom Cab which proliferated London's streets in Victorian times and many churches, including St Walburg's in Preston.

History of Brunton House

The house has a rich history and was also the home of engineer and architect Edmund Sharpe who designed St Paul's Church in Scotforth and was known as Lancaster's Renaissance Man for his work in improving sanitation and clean water supplies in the city. In 1885, it was bought for £3,600 by The Royal Albert Institution to care for wealthy patients. At the time its grounds stretched beyond Sharpe's Hill, now Newsham Road, and included croquet and tennis lawns.

In 1937, it was sold to a builder who separated the grounds for development and sold the building to a local architect who converted it into flats. The building still retains many of its original structural features including bay windows, an impressive staircase and the coat of arms of the Dalton family above the main door.
