New Little Mill

Located on the corner of Bengal Street and Jersey Street in Ancoats, Little Mill was constructed by the Murray Brothers following the completion of Murrays Mills, in around 1822, and originally linked to New Mill by an underground tunnel. Little Mill was the first recording of a cotton mill run by mains electric. Having been destroyed by fire around 1908, the mill was rebuilt and renamed "New Little Mill".

The Tour

Upon entering, you're welcomed into a hallway with doors leading to the rest of the interior designed apartment. The hallway leads you to a spacious open-plan living and kitchen area. The living space has been fitted with a bespoke TV unit and built in hidden desk and drawers. The space is beautifully finished with 18mm engineered oak flooring in native oak and striking exposed brickwork, complemented by two large windows that flood the lounge with natural light.

The fully fitted Mackintosh kitchen features Bellato Grey base units paired with light grey wall cabinets and a 20mm Bellato Grey laminate worktop. Finishing touches include grey splashback tiles, Hansgrohe swivel taps, under-cabinet lighting, and a full range of integrated appliances — Neff stainless steel electric oven with black glass hob, CDA fridge, freezer, and dishwasher.

Both bedrooms are fully carpeted, with the primary bedroom offering generous windows, exposed brick features, and LED downlighting. The primary bedroom further benefits from built-in wardrobes and TV and satellite connection points. The second bedroom has been bespoke fitted with a walk-in wardrobe.

The bathrooms are elegantly appointed with contemporary white three-piece suites. The family bathroom includes a shower over the bath, while the en-suite features a walk-in shower. Both are fitted with Duravit toilets and sinks set on solid oak countertops, complemented by large glass mirrors and porcelain tiled flooring.
