Carmunnock is the last remaining rural village within the city boundary of Glasgow. It has a conservation centre which includes a thriving coffee shop, helpful pharmacy, excellent village shop, admired restaurant and historical Parish Church. The village has an excellent primary and nursery school. Situated on the edge of the Cathkin Braes provides easy access to a full range of outdoor pursuits such as the Commonwealth Mountain bike circuit, Cathkin Golf course, equestrian facilities and country walks. A full range of sporting and leisure facilities are also available within the surrounding district. There is a direct bus service to East Kilbride and Glasgow city centre and Busby Train Station is approximately one and half miles away also giving access to the city. The nearby suburbs of Clarkston and Newton Mearns provide independent retailers and shopping outlets and there are further covered malls in East Kilbride and Newton Mearns. Distance to Glasgow
