Background

Historically The Black Lion has been one of Rhayader's busiest and much loved public houses.

It has served many people attending the regular livestock sales in the smithfield market opposite over very many decades, as well as those attending many of the other events held there such as car rallies, vintage shows, car boot sales, carnival events and so on.

In previous times the pub boasted having two darts and dominoes teams.

In more recent times the property was used as a popular Indian restaurant/takeaway and public bar on the ground floor. This area has been temporarily separated off from the first and second floors which remain uninhabited.

Sitting on a large, prime site in Rhayader, The Black Lion has a lot of potential for future purchasers to develop..

Situation

Rhayader is well known for its' town centre crossroads which sees the A44 east west (Midlands to the West Wales Coast) and the A470 north south (north Wales Cardiff) roads.

Coupled with it's close proximity to the nearby livestock market with its regular sales of lambs, sheep and cattle as well as many community events, the public house is uniquely positioned to take advantage of the excellent footfall and passing trade that such a location brings with it.
