INTRODUCTION

Bunkers Hill Farm has been in the same family ownership for many years with modern extensions added to the house on the southern elevation within the vendors tenure. Formerly part of a larger farming unit Bunkers Hill Farm used to span well over seventy acres across the North Kent Downs with the main buildings opposite the Farmhouse used for intensive agriculture and livestock purposes. In the present day the Farm consists of a small holding with the land grazed by local farmers to keep the grass at a manageable level. The house has character throughout and the outbuildings have development potential to create what would be a fantastic family home in a sought after location subject to the necessary planning consents. The buildings and land to the east of Payden Street are being retained by the Vendor but are available by separate negotiation.
