Description

Built in 1901 as the foremost luxury hotel in Bath and subsequently commissioned and occupied by the Admiralty in 1939 until 1989. The Empire was restored to its original splendour by Pegasus, the retirement specialist. The result is a range of luxuriously appointed apartments set within one of Bath's most prominent Listed buildings.

Residents at The Empire have access to excellent additional facilities which include a drawing room, dining room, a delightful private garden, cinema, snooker room, additional laundry facilities and fitness room. There are also three guest suites which can be rented for a nominal fee.

This two-bedroom apartment is situated on the first floor of this elegant building. The apartment is light and spacious, with very good proportions throughout.

On entering the apartment, you are welcomed into an airy entrance hall with a storage cupboard for coats, as well as a separate, very useful airing cupboard. The sitting room is spacious with good ceiling height and enjoys a south westerly view over the communal garden.

The galley style fitted kitchen has plenty of cupboard space with integrated appliances, to include a Bosch electric oven and Neff microwave oven above, Indesit electric hob, Neff fridge-freezer, Indesit dishwasher and Neff washing machine. The sink is located at the very end of the kitchen, perfectly placed to enjoy an outlook over the communal garden.

The master bedroom and en suite bathroom has been thoughtfully designed, with a door which can be closed, to shut it off from the rest of the accommodation.

The bedroom is good sized with a useful built-in wardrobe. There is a second bedroom and separate shower room.
