

Hayreed Lane, Wilmington

Lewes Estates

Situated in a hugely peaceful and tranquil semi-rural location at the end of a no-through country lane on the rural outskirts of Wilmington, a historic village in the South Downs National Park famed for its ruined Benedictine Priory and the Long Man of Wilmington, a hill figure etched into the steep slopes of Windover Hill. Wilmington has a public house and tea room. Day to day amenities, including a range of supermarkets, are found at Polegate (three miles) and comprehensive shopping, cinema, leisure centre and restaurants at Eastbourne (seven miles) and Lewes (10 miles).

The vibrant county town of Lewes is to the west, and has a mainline train service to London (Victoria/London Bridge about 64 minutes). Alternatively, there is a mainline station at Polegate (with regular services to Eastbourne, Brighton and London) and also at Berwick, which is approximately 2.5 miles. The business and entertainment centre of Eastbourne is about 7 miles to the east.

The entrance to Abbot's Wood (360 hectares) is within half a mile of Hayreed House from a secluded lane and provides links to bridleways including the Cuckoo Trail, and hacking on all weather tracks through the woods.

Arlington Reservoir (49 hectares) can be reached from the bridleway leading from Hayreed Lane or by other access points around the village to a bridleway route along the edge of the reservoir.

The South Downs are about 2 miles from Hayreed and it takes between 20-30 minutes to hack to the foot of the Downs which involve crossing the A27 or alternatively there is a horsebox parking at various access points to the Downs and Friston Forest.
