Gocek is a small but affluent town between Dalaman and Fethiye on Turkey's Turquoise Coast. It boasts no fewer than six luxury yacht marinas, attracting visitors from all over the globe, including celebrities and royalty.

Nearby bays and coves and the famous 12 islands boast crystal-clear Mediterranean waters fringed by green pine forests and dotted with secluded beaches, many of which are only accessible by boat.

The town itself is also home to a good selection of restaurants, coffee shops, bars, and small independent businesses catering to both land-based visitors and sea-faring tourists visiting the harbour.

The brand new glass kitchen is fully equipped with the highest quality white goods behind the seating area; it also contains a wine cellar.

On your right is the second en-suite, which the current owner uses as a children's room.
