INTERESTING FACT

On the way to the Top O' the Hill restaurant in Sevenoaks, during their lunch break, John Lennon visited an antique shop a few doors along from the restaurant. This was Andrew Mair's antique shop at 44a High Street, which until recently was occupied by Leverets, a firm of barristers and solicitors. It was here that John purchased a Victorian circus poster for Pablo Fanque's Circus Royal appearance in Rochdale.

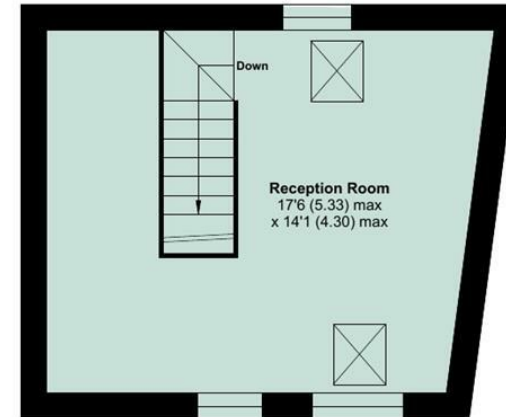

The poster was the source for most of the lyrics in his song "Being for the Benefit of Mr. Kite", although he relocated the circus from Rochdale to Bishopsgate and the horse's name is Zanthus on the poster rather than Henry. The song appeared on the album Sgt Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band, released in May 1967.
