Description

Set off a rural lane just to the edge of the village of West Peckham is this stunning example of a 15th century home that has been sympathetically modernised to meet the current needs of family and individual buyers.

A private entrance via a five bar gate gives great parking for owners and visitors where you get just a glimpse of what is on offer. In true country style most enter via the back stable door into the extended kitchen breakfast room with shaker style modern fitted cupboards to both walls and space for a lovely breakfast table to look out over the half open door to the patio. A nice social connection to the dining room through a door way with additional storage you will notice the internal period charm starting to come to life. The clean lines of modern shutters to the windows are a great addition throughout the house. A period door leads back to the front of the house and the original entrance hallway with tiled floor and original timbers that were reused from decommissioned ships, the original recycling! Access from this welcoming hallway is given to the downstairs shower room. A further door leads to the main reception room. The wonderful inglenook fireplace is the main feature to this spacious room with its bread oven and fabulous wood burning stove. A further doorway leads out to the social patio that connects the rear of this home. A flexible room offers the option of a third bedroom or study combination for those looking for more bedroom space. It currently holds a good sized double bed and desk set up.

The first floor continues to ooze charm in every way with a modern twist, The main bedroom is a very good sized double with a bank of wardrobes to one wall giving plenty of storage space. The second bedroom is a good size to and offer views over the fabulous garden. A stylish modern bathroom serves both of these bedroom with a raised modern egg shaped bath mixed with exposed timbers.

The garden is one of the main events of this great property. An approx. 0.75 acres private plot with a mix of a large social patio connected to the house, orchard style tree planting grass connected walkways to pockets of privacy that give so many options to adapt and develop into the dream garden of your choice. Festoon lighting sits around the property offering alfresco socialising into the late hours.

The property is bordering farmland is a real gift to relax enjoy and take in the changing seasons. An ancient but functional well sits within the garden which was the former water supply for the whole village.
