Plymouth

Plymouth, Britain's Ocean City, is one of Europe's most vibrant waterfront cities. Located in one of the most beautiful locations imaginable, Plymouth is sandwiched between the incredible South West coastline and the wild beauty of Dartmoor National Park. Plymouth is 37 miles south-west of Exeter and 190 miles west-south-west of London, between the mouths of the rivers Plym to the east and Tamar to the west where they join Plymouth Sound to form the boundary with Cornwall, it is also home to one of the most natural harbours in the world. To the North of Plymouth is Dartmoor National Park, extending to over 300 square miles, which provides excellent recreational facilities.

The city is home to more than 260,000 people, making it the 30th most populated city in the United Kingdom and the second-largest city in the South West, after Bristol and has a full range of shopping, educational and sporting facilities. There is mainline train service to London (Paddington) and to Penzance in West Cornwall.

There's everything that you would expect to find in a cool, cultural city, with great shopping, arts and entertainment. But there's also hundreds of years of history to uncover, from Sir Francis Drake and the Spanish Armada to the Mayflower sailing in 1620, to a city rebuilt following the Blitz during World War II. With easy access to Exeter and its International Airport and a mainline train station giving direct access to London and a ferry port offering sea crossings to both France and Spain.

Plymouth is governed locally by Plymouth City Council and is represented nationally by three MPs. Plymouth's economy remains strongly influenced by shipbuilding and seafaring including ferry links to Brittany and Spain, but has tended toward a university economy since the early 2000's. It has the largest operational naval base in Western Europe – HMNB Devonport.

Saltash Passage

Saltash Passage (or Riverside) is on the Devon side of the River Tamar, opposite Saltash. It is part of St Budeaux. Saltash Passage lies at the northern end of Wolseley Road, previously known as Ferry Road. The local railway station continues to be known as Ferry Road Station. Saltash Passage is named after the ferry route that carried passengers and vehicles between Saltash in Cornwall and Plymouth, across the River Tamar. The ferry became uneconomic following the construction of the Tamar Bridge in 1961. Saltash Passage is a popular leisure destination for the locals as well as tourists in summer. Apart from housing, Saltash Passage is home to two pubs: the Royal Albert Bridge Inn (currently closed) and the Ferry House Inn. The Ferry House Inn has recently been extended to include accommodation. The area also hosts the Tamar River Sailing Club, a number of moorings and 2 public slipways. There is a small park that has a children's playground. A visit to the gardens forms part of the itinerary of some coach tours. Several high value houses have recently been built nearby. The river is not safe for weak swimmers, however. The two bridges dominate the view to the north, the Tamar Bridge (opened 1961) carrying the A38 road and the Royal Albert Bridge (opened 1859) carrying the Cornish Main Line. A 12 foot tall memorial stone with a bronze plaque stands in the gardens, commemorating the embarkation of American and British troops for the D-Day landings of World War II. In 2004, a service was held for the 60th anniversary of D-Day. Many river birds can commonly be seen whilst sitting in the park, including a family of swans, several types of gulls, cormorants, oystercatchers, little egrets and the occasional grey heron. Jackdaws and pied wagtails also work the shore when the tide is out. Sometimes buzzards, kestrels and birds of prey can be seen hunting. Owls can often be heard at night.

More Property Information

Outside, you will find delightful gardens both at the front and rear, offering a tranquil space to unwind. The property also features off-road parking for two vehicles, a valuable asset in this desirable location.

Backing onto Kinterbury Creek woodland and a wildlife trail, this home is a haven for nature lovers and outdoor enthusiasts, providing easy access to the waterfront and an abundance of natural beauty.

This property is sure to attract a wide range of buyers, and we highly recommend an internal viewing to fully appreciate all it has to offer. With its ideal location and superb features, this home is unlikely to remain on the market for long.
