LOCATION
Brawby is a small village just north of Malton, sitting neatly between the rivers Rye and Seven. It’s a quiet spot, with farmland stretching out on all sides, and easy access to the Howardian Hills and the edge of the North York Moors. The village itself is mostly cottages and farmhouses, with a friendly, lived-in feel.

From Brawby you’re only a short drive to Malton, Yorkshire’s food capital, with its markets, restaurants, and craft shops. Head the other way and you’ll find wide open countryside, riverside walks, and routes up towards Kirkbymoorside and the moors beyond. The village is also known for its small but characterful Brawby Garage concerts, hosted in a converted garage and bringing in musicians and performers from near and far.

It’s not a place of big attractions, but that’s the charm. Brawby is about stillness, scenery, and being close to both town and moor.
