Property Introduction

This beautifully presented Grade II Listed family home, constructed in 1832, occupies a central village position close to all the amenities Chacewater has to offer. Having been modernised and tastefully refurbished by the current vendor, the property boasts an abundance of period features, including a wonderful ornate decorative staircase, high ceilings, Georgian windows and a focal point inglenook fireplace in the sitting room along with many more features which can be appreciated when viewing. The rooms are of excellent proportions with two reception rooms on the ground floor along with a modern refitted kitchen with plenty of storage, a shower room/utility, and a light and airy entrance porch. To the first floor are five bedrooms and a large bathroom, with the majority of the first floor accommodation having exposed floorboards and original doors. The vendor has maintained the historic features whilst refurbishing the property with a great deal of care and thought to retain its original character whilst creating a modern light and airy contemporary feel. The property has majority secondary double-glazed windows along with an oil-fired heating system. Externally is an area of garden and parking plus an additional parking space, and an outbuilding ready for development for various uses.

Location

Being centrally located in Cornwall, Chacewater is ideal for access to both north and south coastlines, the north popular with surfers whilst the south being renowned for its excellent sailing waters.

As you would expect from a village there is a strong community spirit supported with excellent local amenities including doctors surgery, very well-regarded primary school, Public House, bowling club, and tucked away off the main street is an old market offering a variety of deli-foods, wines and plants. The village also boasts its own observatory! Chacewater lies approximately three miles from the cathedral city of Truro, popular for its cobbled streets and Georgian architecture, home to the Hall for Cornwall and offering a good range of independent retail shops alongside the more recognisable national chains. The vibrant university seaside town of Falmouth is a mere 20 minute drive. Redruth can be reached in 8 minutes.
