Description

Lot 1—Development Site shown in Red on the plan

The sale offers a rare and exciting opportunity to purchase a development site with the benefit of planning permission for conversion of agricultural buildings to create six new spacious dwellings. The site has existing vehicular access off Parkhall Lane through a large entrance gateway leading to a concrete yard area. The site currently comprises the two agricultural buildings which are to be converted, together with a further building which is to be demolished as part of the planning permission. One of the proposed dwellings was granted planning permission for an agricultural workers dwelling under the planning reference listed below.

The five proposed dwellings granted under the class Q route are situated on one floor offering two different sizes. The southern building is internally divided into three proposed dwellings, which will briefly comprise a spacious, modern living dining kitchen, three bedrooms, two with ensuite facilities and a family bathroom.

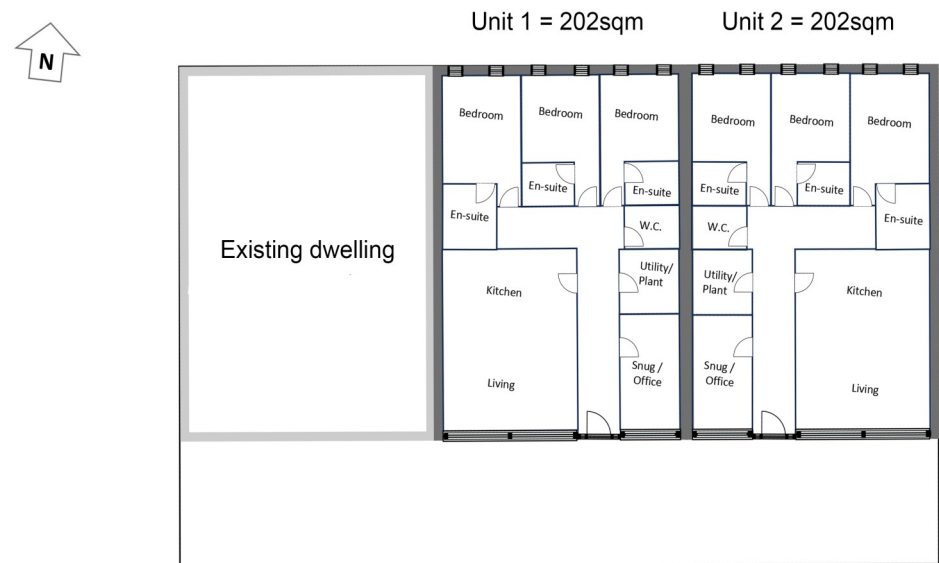

The North building will also comprise three dwellings, two under class Q and one being the agriculturally tied dwelling. The two class Q dwellings will offer similar accommodation briefly comprising a large living dining kitchen, a separate snug/office, along with a utility room and a w.c. cloakroom. There are three double bedrooms all with ensuite facilities.

The agriculturally tied building has accommodation over two storeys, comprising a large open plan living dining kitchen, a utility and boot room, a large living room and an office. There are stairs rising to the first floor, with four double bedrooms, the master bedroom boasting an ensuite, and a family bathroom. The accommodation on offer would be extensive and flexible, suited to family life and provides ample space.

The planning permission gives each dwelling parking and garden areas, with country outlooks. The entire site extends to approx. 1 acre which can be divided between the proposed dwellings.
