

A photograph of a two-story brick terrace house. The house has a dark brown tiled roof and a brick chimney. The front facade is made of red brick. There are several windows: a large white-framed window on the left, a smaller white-framed window above the front door, and a small window to the right of the front door. The front door is white with a glass panel. To the right of the front door is a large glass door leading to a back garden. In the back garden, there are three green bins, a black bin, and some wooden planks. A wooden fence runs along the front of the garden. A red circular sign with the text 'TO LET' is in the top right corner.
