The original cottage, with the distinct eyebrow roofline, dates from c1700 with extensions added in the 1980s. Property of this nature rarely come on the market and only when viewed can this wonderful home and garden be fully appreciated.

The present owners have renovated and modernised extensively over the past four years, including landscaping work in the garden. There are many character features in the house, including a box bay and window seat with lovely views and original exposed beams in the kitchen/dining room.

Overall the accommodation comprises front and rear porches and hall, a large, light sitting room with fireplace and wood burner. Off the rear porch is a utility room. The large kitchen/diner has a bespoke fitted kitchen, oak flooring and inglenook fireplace with wood burner. There is a bathroom with shower over and a separate WC. There is a second staircase to a large bedroom, a walk-in dressing area and separate shower room. This part of the house has its own entrance and could be ideal for a potential source of income or a dependent relative.

The well maintained gardens, with two lawned areas, are arranged on three levels with many mature trees.
