Exchange Flags: much more than a landmark

Liverpool is a city that is attracting new investment from around the globe. A city that means business. Not since its days as the foremost port in the world has Liverpool witnessed development activity of the past decade. Grosvenor's Liverpool ONE, a 10,000-seater arena and conference & exhibition centre, hotels to cater for every budget and a cruise liner landing stage are just some of the features of the cityscape. Liverpool's business reputation is enhanced by its acclaimed success in hosting the 2014 International Festival of Business: An event which returns to the city in 2016. This rich heritage has established the city as a leading tourist destination in the UK. With more museums and galleries than any city outside London and a World Heritage Waterfront, Liverpool boasts unique character; artistic, sporty, vibrant, adaptable and welcoming. The high quality of lifestyle on offer is a decisive factor for major inward investors seeking a new business location.

At the heart of everything that matters

Innovative design, high quality workmanship and forward-thinking management has set Exchange Flags apart from its competition but it offers much more too. Elegant façades, geometric lines and massive columned porticos reflect the era of Liverpool's standing as one of the world's foremost commercial centres. And with the resurgence of the city's fortunes, that style and presence is in demand from regional, national and international businesses. Walker House and Horton House can offer the full range of high quality accommodation to suit micro-businesses and corporate headquarters.

Exchange Flags is much more than an office building – it's a business community that welcomes new occupiers. Whether large or small, all tenants can be assured of an exceptional standard of management provided by a dedicated on-site team.

First impressions make lasting business impressions

Every detail considered and future-proofed

Exchange Flags has to be Liverpool's most desirable business address – and it is a great destination for gourmet dining too. Walker House and Horton House, the two distinct elements that comprise Exchange Flags, flank an impressive square that is complemented by the Town Hall on its fourth side. The elegance of the original architecture has been matched by a sympathetic yet stylish refurbishment – the specification is equivalent to Grade A office accommodation across the city. One of the UK's largest legal practices was quick to acknowledge the quality of accommodation and housed its headquarters in Horton House. A large government agency also relocated to Exchange Flags taking 70,000sqft of accommodation and being awarded best workplace fit-out by the British Council of Offices (BCO) regional awards. Other sectors represented include wealth management, niche legal services, commodity trading, construction and surveying consultancies as well as restaurants, cafés and delicatessens.
