Freeman House

Inside, the property is brimming with original features — from vaulted ceilings and exposed brickwork to sash windows, oak beams, and a striking fireplaces and gas-effect log burners. With three generous reception rooms, five well-proportioned bedrooms, and a beautifully landscaped garden, this home offers space, elegance, and soul in equal measure. Off-street parking adds to the rare practicality in such a central spot.

Step through the panelled front door into the welcoming sitting room where twin sash windows, exposed beams, and a statement brick wall set the tone. The gas stove, recessed in a curved brick hearth, offers both warmth and ambience — ideal for quiet evenings or relaxed entertaining.

Beyond, the inner hall leads to a handy utility room with wooden worktops and a separate guest WC, before unfolding into a spacious open-plan dining and snug area. Here, oak and limestone flooring meet a walk-around brick chimney and another log-effect gas fire. The snug is full of charm with beams overhead and soft, natural light — the perfect spot to curl up with a book or glass of wine.

The kitchen is a standout space — a vaulted ceiling with painted oak beams crowns this Tom Howley-designed room, complete with Silestone worktops, integrated appliances, and expansive glazing framing views of the garden.

The staircase rises to the first floor, home to two generous double bedrooms, with exposed beams and heritage features including an original fireplaces. A sleek shower room serves this level. Upstairs again, the top floor offers two further double bedrooms, both characterful and bright, plus a stylish family re-fitted shower room — a modern classic.

Accessed via stairs from the snug, two additional rooms offer flexibility — a peaceful home office, sixth bedroom or creative space, enjoying a high-level feature window and glazed balustrade. Whilst to the rear, a fifth bedroom offers the perfect private space for occasional guests with its own WC and basin.

The garden is a serene, beautifully curated space — a true extension of the home’s character. Framed by bleached trees that provide natural privacy and elegance, the plot includes a charming summer house, a petite greenhouse perfect for pottering, and a delightful garden bar for relaxed evenings with friends. An ornamental pond adds a tranquil focal point, while carefully considered planting and defined seating areas create a space that’s both low-maintenance and rich in ambience — ideal for entertaining or simply enjoying the peace.
