Neighbourhood.

Ancoats has been called “the world’s first industrial suburb” and its proximity to the city centre has led to substantial regeneration, largely driven by new residential schemes and mill properties refurbished to provide on-trend office accommodation.

The area was recently ranked as one of the trendiest places to live in the world by Time Out.

There is excellent amenity nearby, with both Cutting Room Square and the Northern Quarter being home to an array of independent businesses, cafes, shops, clubs and bars.

Description.

This self-contained office is set over the first and second floors and is accessed via its own fully glazed, treble-height entrance on Oldham Road, offering excellent branding opportunities.

The modern stairwell and passenger lift serve both floors and there is an additional internal connecting staircase on the other side of the property.

Both the first and mezzanine floors provide a mixture of open plan workspace and private offices.
