Set elevated on Upper Clevedon hillside, this exceptional home commands spectacular panoramic views over the town and across the Bristol Channel. With two driveways offering parking for up to six cars, along with EV charging points, it combines striking design with everyday practicality.

Architecturally crafted to harness light and views, the home features vast southwest-facing windows that flood the interior with sun and showcase Clevedon's iconic sunsets. Recently installed solar panels have reportedly covered up to 90% of electricity costs during summer, making the property both stylish and energy efficient.

The main kitchen is sleek and sociable, with premium appliances and a central island perfect for gathering. It opens to a balcony and a glass-enclosed sunroom with sliding doors and a wireless retractable roof, providing year-round enjoyment. A woodburner and natural wood flooring add warmth and charm, while a spacious utility room enhances functionality.

The flexible layout suits both entertaining and daily life. The open-plan ground floor connects seamlessly to more private areas, while the lower ground level includes a second kitchen, study, bathroom, and a 30ft+ family room—ideal for a home office, gym, or separate living space for an independent family member.

Upstairs are four well-proportioned bedrooms. The principal suite feels like a boutique hotel, complete with a Jacuzzi bath perfectly positioned to enjoy the night sky. A guest suite with wet room and a modern bathroom serve the remaining rooms. A fifth bedroom is available on the lower level, along with another bathroom.

A fully self-contained one-bedroom annexe with open-plan living and a wraparound balcony offers income potential or space for multi-generational living, with planning permission in place for a second bedroom and bathroom.

The landscaped, low-maintenance garden features lawned areas, a sun deck, summerhouse/workshop, shed, and wood store.
