Entirely original, with style and character in abundance, this property offers something different for people looking to make the move from the capital to Brighton & Hove, searching for a safer space to raise children, close to excellent commuter links and with the fresh sea air nearby.

Uniquely this property has remained one dwelling with incredible original features which have been beautifully restored by the current owner who has a deep respect for period properties, to ensure their original character is not lost during renovations. The exterior bears the architectural plasterwork features of the period, alongside sash canted bay windows and leaded transom window above the front door which adds a pop of colour in pillar box-red. A traditionally tiled path paved the way to the door which opens to a grand entrance hall where the scale and beauty of the house become apparent.

Gloriously high ceilings adorned with original cornicing and corbels sit high above your head in the entrance hall, while the original wide floorboards support you from below as you enter this elegant home. The transom window between the vestibule and the hallway bears a traditional tulip design which is echoed throughout the house and muted heritage tones have been used on the walls with the woodwork picked out in white. The original balustrades and mahogany banister wend their way up through the floors which invite you to explore further.

There are two beautiful rooms on the entrance floor, each bearing period features, fireplaces and high ceilings. They are currently dressed as bedrooms, but they are versatile spaces ideal as reception rooms, workspaces or playrooms. Their sash windows fill each space with light from east to west and it would be possible to open them up to each other to create one exceptional social space – all food for thought.

Originally created for large gatherings with banquet seating, the reception room with open plan kitchen has restaurant qualities and is set up perfectly for entertaining in style. The kitchen is hand built from solid cedar and granite with fully integrated appliances, a black Marmoleum floor, exposed brick features and industrial-style fittings. This is a hugely versatile space which could be reconfigured to include separate seating and dining areas or workspaces. There is currently a built-in seating area for watching TV and French doors open to the front of the house where there is a sweet west-facing patio. This could also be used as a second entrance to the property should you wish to convert the lower ground floor as a separate dwelling.

A second decked patio sits to the rear of the property with tall walls and space for outdoor seating and potted plants. There is also a useful rear gate for bringing in bikes/buggies/water sports equipment rather than traipsing them through the immaculate house.

The bathrooms balance tradition and contemporary perfectly with Victorian mini-checkerboard floor tiles a muted heritage palette and metro brick wall tiles running floor to ceiling. There are bathrooms on every level, three of which have rainfall showers, while the grand bathroom on the lower ground floor has a four-person jacuzzi bath! Every fixture and fitting is of the finest quality and perfectly in keeping with the era of the building.

The upper floors are split-level housing three further bedrooms – all beautifully styled with the original wide floorboards and woodwork features. There are two bedrooms to mirror the reception rooms/bedrooms below them, with a third slightly smaller double room sharing access to their own bathroom on the upper level but easily accessible.
