GENERAL REMARKS

This beautifully designed house has some quite unique features with circular turret style sections over three floors with 360 degree windows at the top floor, enjoying views to the church and countryside beyond the town. Built in 2003, the house forms part of an individual development of just five homes. It has a timber frame construction, using traditional building practices and high environmental standards, ensuring the house is energy efficient. Triple glazed, south facing windows overlook the private patio and gardens which then wrap around three sides of the house with a shared cobbled path at the far side which runs between two neighbours.

Its individual accommodation comprises up to four bedrooms with the middle or top circular room offering itself as a secondary living space to the ground floor living room. The kitchen/diner is a practical space and similar to the living room, has French windows out to the gardens. A stylish bathroom on the middle floor is supplemented by the utility with WC on the ground floor with entrance hall completing the internal accommodation.

Outside, the development has access from Kerry Lane to a private parking space and shared path with steps to the covered side entrance and the well screened patio and lawn gardens which lie to the west, south and east of the house.

The sale of 5 Bells Court presents a rare opportunity to live in a uniquely designed yet practical modern home and merits closer inspection.
