Tucked just a few steps from The Assembly Rooms, this elegant Georgian townhouse enjoys a superb position in the very heart of Bath. The location is moments from Russell Street and Saville Row, home to the popular Beckford Bottle Shop and Boston Tea Party. Margaret's Buildings, with its charming row of independent boutiques, is nearby, as are the world-renowned Royal Crescent and the 57 acres of green space at Royal Victoria Park. Everyday conveniences can be found on Julian Road, including a Co-Op, and residents benefit from a Central Zone parking permit.

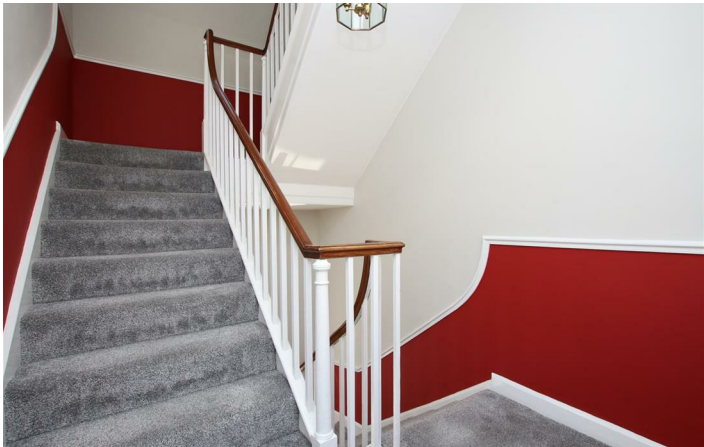

The accommodation is arranged across five storeys, with generously proportioned rooms and period features throughout. The lower ground floor is laid out with a double bedroom, shower room and vaults, one of which has been sensitively converted into a very usable utility/kitchen while others provide excellent storage. On the ground floor the main kitchen offers ample space for entertaining, enhanced by an impressive fireplace and large sash windows. There are base and wall units, oven, gas hob, fridge/freezer and dishwasher.

The first floor is home to a fine sitting room of excellent proportions, with a grand fireplace and natural light streaming in from the rear. The upper floors provide two further bedrooms, each with its own bathroom. The principal bedroom includes a built-in wardrobe and en suite, while the top-floor bedroom enjoys its own bathroom and superb elevated views across Bath.

The property can be offered furnished or unfurnished and is available to rent, now.
