THE PROPERTY

Dating back around 400 years in part, Trerise Veau was originally part of the Carclew Estate. In recent years, the cottage has been extended and improved. Following this, there has been a sympathetic scheme of modernization carried out by our client during their 10-year ownership. Some of those improvements include the installation of bespoke hardwood double glazing by Devoran Joinery, a full internal relaying of travertine stone flooring throughout the ground floor, installation of a 'Clearview' wood-burning stove, refitting of the kitchen and both bath/shower rooms, along with external improvements to the gardens and outbuildings. The property also benefits from mains gas central heating and a range oven with gas hobs and electric ovens.

In all, a superbly presented period property with glorious gardens and an array of outbuildings, all within easy walking distance of the excellent village amenities, in particular, the village stores, which are almost within sight of the entrance gates.

THE SITUATION

Located in the heart of the highly desirable Carnon Downs village, 'Trerise Veau' offers convenient access to a plethora of everyday conveniences. These include a well-stocked convenience store (just 60m away), reliable bus services, and essential healthcare facilities, all within easy walking distance from the property. Situated just four miles away, the cathedral city of Truro serves as the county's hub for retail, commerce, administration, healthcare, and education. The university campus at Tremough is a mere five miles south along the A39 and port town of Falmouth with picturesque harbour and beaches is easily accessible at a distance of seven miles.
