General information

Tweed Business Park, formerly Tweed Mills comprises a complex of Nineteenth century former textile mill buildings, located one mile to the north east of Selkirk town centre.

Selkirk is situated in the central hub of the Scottish Borders, to the east of the Ettrick and Yarrow Valleys. The town benefits from good road connections to the other main towns in the Scottish Borders, Edinburgh (and the north), Carlisle (and the west) and Newcastle (and the south) via the A7 arterial route and the A68 trunk road.

A number of mills, including Tweed Mills, were developed in the Riverside area of Selkirk during the nineteenth century to accommodate a vast growth in the textile industry.

Substantial redevelopment works have been undertaken over the past decade in the area to provide a new lease of life to the area following the decline in the textile industry.

The area has been transformed into one of the principal business locations in the Central Borders.

Description

Since acquiring the site JS Crawford Estates have comprehensively redeveloped this area to form a unique business park providing high quality, flexible and adaptable business space.

The site is serviced via a new principal access road from Dunsdale Road into the centre of the Estate, with zoned business areas, with ample car parking and a bus stop.

This unit is of traditional whinstone construction under a pitched roof clad in slate with modern extension to the rear of steel frame construction under mono-pitch roof finished in insulated composite panelling. Internally, the offices have finished to a high standard throughout.

They are presented in 'turn-key' condition.
