Looking for a home with character and space in a thriving rural setting? This charming three-bedroom detached stone house, set within a third of an acre, combines timeless features with practical modern touches, offering a versatile layout, mature gardens, and easy access to local amenities.

This beautifully crafted three-bedroom stone house is brimming with character and charm, making it an ideal family home in the rural hamlet of Drefelin. Sitting on approximately a third of an acre, the property combines traditional features like exposed beams and stone walls with practical outdoor space, perfect for growing families or keen gardeners.

The lounge/diner forms the heart of the home, offering a spacious layout with two exposed stone walls and two wood-burning stoves that create a cosy yet grand atmosphere, complemented by the natural light from four sash windows. This room leads seamlessly into the kitchen, designed with practicality and style in mind. Vaulted ceilings with exposed trusses, and modern appliances, including a Rangemaster cooker, provide everyday convenience.

A separate sitting room offers a more intimate space to relax, with French doors opening directly to the garden. Wooden floors and additional exposed stone details tie the aesthetic of this room to the rest of the home, creating a cohesive and welcoming interior.

Upstairs, the character continues with three well-proportioned double bedrooms. Vaulted ceilings, exposed stone walls, and built-in wardrobes add a touch of rustic charm, while modern double-glazed sash windows bring in plenty of light. The family bathroom is both functional and stylish, with a standalone bath, shower, and fully tiled walls.
