About The Property

Looking for a spacious, updated bungalow with spectacular views and real versatility? This extended four-bed home on a generous corner plot delivers stylish interiors, a sunroom, and panoramic countryside views across Newcastle Emlyn – all just a short drive from Cardigan Bay in West Wales.

Tucked away in a small cul-de-sac, this detached bungalow offers more than initially meets the eye. Sitting on a sizeable corner plot, there's room to park multiple cars, plus a touring caravan, on the wide tarmac driveway behind bespoke gates. The views are a real highlight – stretching out over the rooftops of Newcastle Emlyn and out towards the hills of West Wales.

The layout has been thoughtfully extended and adapted, giving the house plenty of flexibility depending on what's needed. The former garage has been converted into a comfortable main bedroom with its own en-suite, and there's even potential to turn this section into a self-contained annexe with its own access. Next to this is a second room currently used as a walk-in wardrobe, but with water already connected, it could be kitted out as a kitchenette.

The hallway has a warm feel, thanks to the solid wooden flooring that runs through several parts of the home. Doors open into the main lounge where there's a marble fireplace with gas fire, adding a bit of character and comfort.

The kitchen is well laid out, with matching wall and base units, wooden worktops and a central island for prep or casual dining. A Rangemaster cooker with a five-ring gas hob, hot plate and electric double oven fits perfectly with the feel of the kitchen, and there's also a freestanding fridge. From here, double patio doors lead into the sunroom – a more recent addition with electric underfloor heating with its own controls, and space for a wood-burning stove (the one in the photos is not included in the sale).

Details Continued:

Glazed on two sides, the sunroom brings in plenty of natural light, and the views out over the rear garden and hills beyond speak for themselves. Sliding doors open straight onto the decked patio, which offers space for seating and a fire pit.

Back through the kitchen is the utility room – practical and well-equipped with matching cupboards and worktops, plus a sink, plumbing for appliances, the partly enclosed airing cupboard which houses the oil-fired boiler for the hot water and central heating, and access to a rear WC and the outside deck.

There are three further bedrooms accessed from the hallway, all of which are doubles. Two have built-in wardrobes, while the third has full wall-length fitted wardrobes with sliding doors, an electric skylight with rain detection, and its own modern en-suite shower room. The main family bathroom has also been updated, with a contemporary oval bath and overhead shower, vanity unit with sink, and a WC.

Externally:

Outside, the property really opens up. Raised beds, gravel and slate paths, fruit bushes, a mature magnolia, a winding walkway give the gardens character, while still leaving room for new ideas. A greenhouse sits to one side, and a paved paths leads right, around the property. The raised decking, accessed from both the sunroom and utility room, gives a perfect elevated spot to enjoy the views or catch some sun.

A block-built storage room at the back is another bonus – powered, lit and ready to be used for whatever’s needed, whether that’s extra storage, a home office, or even a gym. There’s an outside tap, external sockets scattered around, and plenty of space for seating, planting or pottering.

The property combines space, comfort, and practicality with lovely touches throughout, and with Cardigan Bay just a short distance away, it offers all the best of living in this part of West Wales.
