About The Property

This detached bungalow takes in far-reaching countryside views across the Preseli mountains, located along a country lane at the edge of the village of Tanygroes, with the sea visible in the distance to the rear. Just under two miles from Tresaith beach and a short drive to Cardigan, the property combines rural surroundings with a shop nearby for convenience. and at the end of the road you have the bus service.

The front is accessed via a gated tarmac driveway with room for several vehicles. A small patio area sits next to the conservatory, while the rest of the front garden is mostly lawn, giving it an open feel.

The conservatory is the first room through the door – and with countryside views stretching out ahead, it’s a good spot to sit and take in the changing light or to use as an extra reception and is great for further dining for extended family. From there, a door leads into the hallway, which connects the main parts of the bungalow.

The cosy, spacious lounge features a log burner within the fireplace as its main focal point, while patio doors open straight into the front garden.

The modern kitchen/diner is designed with everyday use in mind. Matching wall and base units give a clean, practical finish, and there’s room for a family dining table. There is also a pantry cupboard in the kitchen. A utility room sits just off the kitchen, offering additional storage and a side door leading out of the property, handy for unloading shopping or dealing with muddy boots after a walk, with space for a washing machine, and it also has a basin.

All three bedrooms are accessed from the hallway. Two are doubles, and all include built-in wardrobes – a useful feature that frees up floor space for furniture or home office setups. The spacious bathroom is well-proportioned and includes both a bath and a separate shower, a w/c, an electric towel rail and a wash hand basin.

Continued:

The rest of the front garden is mostly lawn, giving it an open feel. it benefits from countryside views and privacy. The rear garden can be reached from either side of the bungalow. Again, most of the space is laid to lawn, but the top section includes flower and vegetable beds, with enough room to grow some produce or establish a few borders. A shed sits to one side, which is ideal for a potting shed/greenhouse and it also has water to the shed, the boundary fencing gives a clear separation from the surrounding fields.

One of the standouts here is the detached double garage/workshop. Equipped with power, lighting, water and a car inspection pit ideal for a mechanic, it can fit a caravan or a motor home, it adds value for anyone needing extra workspace or storage. Whether for hobbies, projects, or secure parking, it’s a flexible addition that makes the property more versatile, with large sliding doors. To the rear of the garage is a handy storage room and an additional covered open-fronted area which could be used as a log store

This home ticks the boxes for those looking for a single-level layout, outdoor space, and views that stretch beyond the garden fence.

A lovely home near the coast.
