About The Property

Set in the scenic Cardigan Bay area of West Wales, this two/three-bedroom semi-detached cottage offers a layout with a lot of flexibility, a decent-sized garden, and a practical cabin that can double as a workspace or guest accommodation. It's the sort of place that suits someone looking to enjoy a slower pace, with enough outside space to grow food, keep a few hens, or just potter in the garden.

The house is set back from the road, with a concrete parking area and front garden with log storage. Inside, the entrance hall has a tiled floor and leads to a sitting room that could just as easily be used as a third bedroom. This room has wooden flooring, a front-facing window, exposed beams, and a traditional cottage feel.

The main living/dining space has a homely atmosphere, helped by exposed beams and a multi-fuel burner with a slate hearth. The wooden floors carry through, and there's useful storage under the stairs. This space flows into the kitchen, which is fitted with a good range of wall shelves and base units, a stainless steel sink, and space for essential appliances. A double-glazed window looks out to the front.

Upstairs, split-level stairs lead to two bedrooms, both with stripped wooden floorboards and hardwood double-glazed windows and a bathroom. The main bedroom includes a built-in wardrobe and cupboard housing the Worcester boiler. The second bedroom is slightly smaller but still a comfortable size for a single bed or home office use. The family bathroom includes a bath with electric shower over, WC, and washbasin, with painted floorboards and simple finishes throughout.

Above, the loft room spans the length of the house, with two roof windows providing natural light. While accessed via loft ladder style steps, it offers a decent bonus space with limited head space for hobbies, storage etc.

The garden is a real asset here. It's well laid out, with plenty of space for growing vegetables or keeping animals. Two timber sheds, a greenhouse, and an ornamental pond sit within the plot, along with established areas that could be turned into productive beds. There's scope to really make something of this outdoor space, whether that means self-sufficiency or just enjoying some green surroundings.

A particular highlight is the timber cabin at the bottom of the garden. It has power, lighting, double-glazed windows and doors, and we're advised the floors and walls are insulated. This makes it a strong contender for a home office, studio, or occasional guest room – something that's increasingly useful. With its own space away from the main house, it gives flexibility to adapt to changing needs.

This cottage offers a mix of character and practicality, with the benefits of solid wood flooring, a good heating setup, and a layout that can be adapted over time. For those drawn to the landscape of Cardigan Bay and the rural rhythms of West Wales, this property has potential to settle in and shape things to suit.
