About The Property

Looking for a town centre home with character, space and off-road parking? This three-storey end-terrace offers period charm, modern updates and a garden with private parking, all within easy reach of schools, shops and the Cardigan Bay coastline.

Set in the heart of town, this mid-terraced home brings together period character and well-considered modern updates across three floors. It sits within walking distance of the primary school and all the day-to-day amenities, with the added practical benefit of off-road parking for two cars at the rear. The house has been cared for and improved over recent years, creating a comfortable setting that works well for family life, while still keeping the style and charm expected of a traditional West Wales property. The location allows quick access to the surrounding coastline, including the wider Cardigan Bay area, while remaining firmly part of the community hub.

The entrance hall sets the tone, with original tiled flooring and the decorative archway adding a nod to the building's heritage. The long hallway links the main rooms together, with storage under the stairs and doors leading to the living room, sitting room and dining room. The first of the reception rooms sits at the front, a bright space with original wooden floorboards and a tall window that draws in good natural light. The second reception room is positioned at the rear and has double patio doors opening to the garden, making it a natural everyday space with easy access outside.

The dining room sits between the hallway and kitchen and brings in extra character through its feature brick fireplace and side bay window with timber-framed double glazing.

A door from here leads through to the kitchen, which is fitted with matching wall and base units, wood effect worktops, a circular stainless-steel sink and built-in appliances including an electric oven, gas hob with extractor, dishwasher and fridge. There is space and plumbing for a washing machine, and a door from the kitchen leads straight out to the rear garden.

The first floor offers a split landing, with the bathroom on one side. This room features original wooden flooring, a bath, double shower, toilet, wash hand basin and two built-in cupboards, including the one that houses the gas-fired combi boiler supplying hot water and central heating. The three bedrooms on this level offer a choice of arrangements, with the rear bedroom enjoying a pleasant outlook over the town and the hills beyond. The two front bedrooms include one double and one single, each with original exposed floorboards continuing the character seen elsewhere in the house.

Stairs rise from the landing to the second floor where the top bedroom spans the depth of the roof space. This room features exposed beams, some reduced headroom in places and an en-suite shower room. It works well as a main bedroom, giving a sense of separation from the floor below and adding further flexibility to how the house can be used.

Externally:

Outside, a small front yard with railings separates the house from the pavement, giving a traditional town-house feel. To the rear, a private lane leads to the parking area where double bifold gates provide privacy and security for two vehicles. A wooden gate leads through to the garden, which is mainly level lawn with a gravel path connecting the parking area, patio and back door. The patio area sits directly outside the sitting room and kitchen, creating a straightforward space for outdoor meals or weekend use. An old outside loo remains at the back of the house, adding another small reminder of the property's long history.

Overall, this is a comfortable, well-presented home with a strong sense of character, a very usable layout across three floors and the huge bonus of private parking in a central location. Early viewing is recommended.
