Location

The Cally Estate is located just north of Gatehouse of Fleet in the highly attractive county of Dumfries & Galloway in the South West of Scotland. The locality is dominated with fertile dairy and livestock farms and commercial forestry on the higher ground. The majority of the Estate is low lying with views out towards the sea. It benefits from the influence of the Gulf Stream, creating mild weather conditions ideal for growing grass and woodlands. The Water of Fleet flows through the properties, entering Fleet Bay, a short distance to the south. The area is a desirable tourist destination.

The Estate is situated to the north of the A75. Dumfries is 33 miles to the east, Stranraer 42 miles to the west and the M74/M6 some 56 miles to the east. There are international airports at Glasgow 101 miles, Edinburgh 113 miles, Prestwick 70 miles and Newcastle 118 miles. Cairnryan ferry is 48 miles and offers frequent services directly to Belfast and Larne, Northern Ireland.

Estate History

The Cally Estate, nestled in the hills near Gatehouse of Fleet in Dumfries and Galloway, boasts a rich history under the stewardship of the Murray Usher family—a lineage marked by dedication, innovation, and a profound connection to the land.

The Estate's story begins with James Murray, born in 1727, who inherited extensive lands, including the Cally Estate. The Estate remained within the Murray family, passing through generations, until it came into the hands of Elizabeth Evelyn Murray Usher in 1924. She inherited the Estate from her father, LT. Col. Frederick Murray-Baillie, who had previously combined the Cally and Broughton Estates. Betty's deep-rooted connection to the area was evident; she spent her formative years in Gatehouse of Fleet, fostering a lifelong commitment to the community.

Facing the economic challenges of the early 20th century, Mrs. Murray Usher, a true visionary, made the pragmatic decision to sell vast portions of the Estate. Despite these changes, her dedication to the local community remained unwavering. She established the first tourist information centre in Gatehouse of Fleet and served on the town council, playing a pivotal role in preserving the town's historic charm. Her efforts were recognized in 1982 when she was awarded an OBE for her public service in Scotland.

Elizabeth Murray Usher passed the Estate to her son James and her grandson Peter. On James' passing in 2007 her grandson, Peter Murray Usher took over the whole Estate until his premature death in 2011 and his widow, Jane runs the Estate today.

Today, the Cally Estate stands as a testament to the Murray Usher family's enduring influence. The core Estate is now a commercially viable business providing a mixture of upland hill grazing, lower/cropping grazing, forestry, stalking, rough shooting and fishing.

Cally Estate is more than just a residence; it's a living piece of Scottish history.

Access

The Estate is accessed by a number of minor public roads. The forestry access road off the public road, known as Lauriston road, heads east along the northside of Castramont Hill. This is owned by The Cally Estate with Forest Land Scotland having a servitude right of access over it. At the junction, timber will leave in a northly direction towards Lauriston on an agreed timber haulage route.

Description

The Cally Estate | 1,125 Hectares / 2,780 Acres

To date, the Estate has been run as one unit with three separate farms; Murrayton, Culreoch (pronounced 'Culroke') and Lagg. They comprise attractive livestock farms carrying 1,500 ewes and 73 cattle. A licensee occupies the land on an annual grazing license. The land ranges from arable/fertile silage ground to good quality grazing and rougher hill grazings.

The Little and Big Water of Fleet converge to form The Water of Fleet. There are attractive riparian broadleaves, large hill side spruce blocks and four residential properties and miscellaneous traditional stone and slate farm buildings.

The current mixed land use provides great flexibility to either continue large scale extensive livestock farming or significantly increase the amount of conifer and broadleaf woodlands with the potential to generate large numbers of carbon credits. There are currently no renewable energy option/leases in place.

Residential Summary

The three farms comprise Murrayton, Culreoch and Lagg with a farmhouse at each. There is a further cottage known as Cruffock Cottage located at Murrayton.

Murrayton House

Murrayton House forms the principle house on The Estate with uninterrupted views down the whole valley out to the Solway coast. It benefits a long private driveway crossing an attractive stone bridge. The house has a southerly aspect, sits in a mature setting and has a useful courtyard style set of traditional buildings, currently used for storage and kennels, but could be converted to additional accommodation or garaging as required. The accommodation, in need of some modernisation is over two storeys and comprises;
7 bedrooms, 3 public rooms, 3 bathrooms.

Culreoch Farmhouse

Culreoch farmhouse is located in the heart of The Estate and is the centre for agricultural activities. An attractive stone and slate two storey farmhouse in need of modernisation. The house is approached by a long private farm road and benefits a westerly aspect. It is surrounded by agricultural fields with the Estate's hill ground behind. To the rear and side of the house is a range of traditional stone and slate farm buildings comprising byers, stores, livestock pens, grain tower and a modern general purpose shed.

The residential accommodation comprises;

3 bedrooms, sitting room, kitchen/sitting room, bathroom.

Lagg Cottage

Lagg cottage is located at the southern end of The Estate. The stone and slate, one and a half storey house, sits in a slightly elevated position with attractive uninterrupted views west and south. The house nestles amongst mature trees with the land gently rising behind. A small garden and a set of traditional stone farm buildings provide flexible opportunities for use or conversion to further accommodation. The house is approached by a treelined road with a paddock. The accommodation comprises;

3 bedrooms, sitting room, kitchen, bathroom

Cruffock Cottage

Located to the rear of Murrayton with its separate driveway, Cruffock benefits a small garden, a buffer of Scots pine trees and two loose boxes. The single storey accommodation comprises;
2 bedrooms, bathroom, kitchen and sitting room.

All houses have private water and septic tanks. Two of the four houses are tenanted. The home reports and floorplans are available from the Selling Agent.

Forestry Planting Potential

The Estate is suitable for a substantial woodland creation scheme. A woodland planting report was produced for the Estate in March 2023, bird surveys and archaeological surveys were carried out at this time. A copy of the report, surveys and a current felling licence are available from the Selling Agent upon request.

Sporting Rights

Previously The Cally Estate ran a successful shooting syndicate. With the creation of new release pens the terrain lends itself well to create a fabulous driven bird shoot. Gullies, hillside forestry blocks, bracken banks, riparian broadleaves and ponds create wonderful mixed habitat for wildlife and game birds.

Both Roe and Red are present at Cally and Dumfries & Galloway is renowned for large Red stags which shelter in the extensive forestry blocks. The sporting offers opportunities for revenue generation or owners enjoyment.
