Arranged over three floors, the house offers flexible reception spaces on the ground floor, ideal for families or those working from home. The living room with wood-burning stove flows into a second reception room and a stylish kitchen diner opening to the garden, making it perfect for entertaining. The kitchen features navy cabinetry, marbled worktops, underfloor heating, and a peninsula for casual dining, while a separate utility keeps appliances tucked away.

The garden provides alfresco dining space, lawn for play, and a substantial summer house suitable as a gym, office, or studio. Mature trees add privacy, and a hot tub is included.

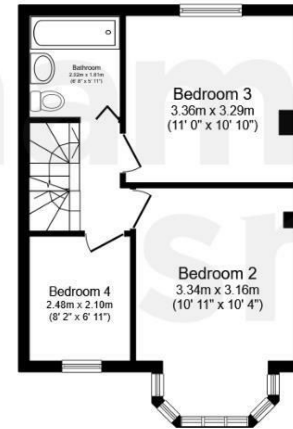

Upstairs, two doubles and a single bedroom share a modern family bathroom. The loft has been converted into a principal suite with dormer extension, en suite shower room, and far-reaching views to the sea and South Downs.

The home is attractively presented, retaining 1940s charm with modern updates including new windows and doors. Local schools, shops, and parks are nearby, with excellent transport links via the A27/A23, buses, and Portslade Station for fast connections to London and beyond.
