Ashby-de-la-Zouch is a historic market town located in North West Leicestershire, England. Steeped in rich history, this quaint town is perhaps best known for its impressive medieval castle, which dates back to the 15th century. The castle, originally built as a manor house, evolved over the centuries into a formidable fortress and a symbol of Ashby's historical significance.

The town itself has a charming and picturesque character, with cobbled streets, traditional architecture, and a market square that reflects its market town heritage. The market square continues to be a focal point for local commerce, hosting regular markets and events that bring the community together. Ashby-de-la-Zouch also boasts a range of historic buildings, including the 15th-century parish church of St. Helen's, which stands as a testament to the town's enduring heritage. Visitors can explore the town's past through various heritage trails, discovering remnants of its industrial and agricultural history.

In addition to its historical attractions, Ashby-de-la-Zouch offers a variety of amenities and recreational opportunities. The town is surrounded by picturesque countryside, providing opportunities for outdoor activities and leisurely walks. The nearby National Forest adds to the natural beauty of the area.
