SITUATION

Rose Cottage enjoys a superb location a short walk from the stunning, south-east facing sandy beach at Porthcurno, nestled within, mature natural gardens. This idyllic setting combines peace and seclusion with convenient access to one of Cornwall's most picturesque coastal destinations.

Porthcurno Beach lies approximately three miles southeast of Land's End (as the crow flies), in the western corner of Porthcurno Bay. The beach is flanked by two iconic landmarks—the world-famous Minack Theatre to the west and Logan Rock to the east. The Minack Theatre, an extraordinary open-air venue carved into the cliffs by Rowena Cade in the 1930s, hosts daily performances during the summer, drawing visitors from around the world.

The South West Coast Path runs directly through Porthcurno Cove, offering spectacular walks and easy access to this breathtaking stretch of the Cornish coastline. Also located within the village is the Museum of Submarine Telegraphy, which explores Porthcurno's fascinating role in global communications and houses historic underground wartime tunnels used as a secret communications centre.

Rose Cottage is ideally positioned to enjoy not only Porthcurno but also the wider attractions of West Cornwall. It lies within close proximity to a number of beautiful beaches and charming fishing villages, including the ever-popular Mousehole. For dining and culture, there are acclaimed restaurants and galleries in nearby Penzance, St Ives, Mousehole, and Sennen. The waters of Mounts Bay are a hub for water sports enthusiasts, offering sailing, kayaking, and more.
