The Home -

Originally constructed in 1870 by the philanthropist Alderman Sir Sydney Waterlow, this one-bedroom flat in a period mansion block overlooks the green space of Weavers Fields, has engineered Oak flooring, an allocated parking space and double glazing. Wilmot Street is located within one minute walk from Bethnal Green overground station. Victoria Park, Brick Lane, Shoreditch and Hackney are all close by offering some of London's most famous cafes, restaurants, shops, markets and nightlife options. Bethnal Green underground station gives access to the Central line and is five minutes walk away, whilst Whitechapel station is a short walk giving access to the new Elizabeth line.

The Indoors

Upon entry we have a handy area for coats and shoes, engineered oak wood flooring which continues into the reception room. The double glazed window in the reception room has a wonderful view overlooking Woodland Walk in the Weavers Fields, here you can see and hear a variety of bird life, such as blackbirds, crows, ring-necked parakeets, Eurasian collared Doves, Blue tits, Robins, Thrushes and Woodpeckers. In the winter as the trees lose their leaves, a wide panorama of London can be seen that covers London Bridge and the City, the Shard and The Lexicon Building (on City Road).

The kitchen is well stocked with cupboards and work surfaces and has "My Colour Flooring" vinyl floor, the woodland view is also visible from the double glazed windows in the kitchen. There is an electric hob, extractor fan and tiled splashbacks. The large bedroom has more of the engineered Oak flooring underfoot, a double glazed window and plenty of space for wardrobes. The bathroom has more of the "My Colour Flooring" vinyl flooring, a bath with shower attachment, hand basin with mirror above and a W.C.
