

Hybrid Working

With the changes in working created by Covid, businesses realise that there are savings to be made with hybrid working. This combines the option of working from home with the option to work in the office. Rent a small office and your staff take turns to come in maybe two at a time on a weekly basis. They get the benefit of working in an office environment and you get the benefit of reduced costs for the business.

Day Office

Another way to feel connected to an office environment is to have a day office a number of days a month, where you can sit quietly undisturbed by the pressures of home and get on with your work.

Co-Working

This is similar to the above, but you may be working with other companies in the room. This can be an advantage as there is an opportunity to network and you are in a working environment.

Dedicated Desk

Ideal for a sole trader needing your own desk, working in a more focused environment. You would be in a co-working office but with your own personal desk with a lockable drawer.

We have three locations you can choose from, all of which you can use during your access time.
