12 Market Place

Guide Price £550,000

The Walpoles...

Attik feel very privileged to be asked to market one of the oldest buildings in Suffolk, known as Blackdog Antiques in the heart of Halesworth. Occupying three floors, the building has a vast footprint of over 4500 square feet with showrooms, workshops and offices.

The building teems with history at every turn from its beams and cross-beams, wide floorboards and period leaded light windows. The building is predominantly Tudor, dating from 1570 and was originally one of four owned by the Walpoles. It was granted a wine licence in the 1600s and continued as licensed premises under the name of The Three Tuns until Adnams, the Southwold brewing company, bought it in 1927. Since then it's had various guises including a private member's club, until 2014, when the current owners bought it from Adnams forming Blackdog Antiques.

1570 was remarkable for two significant events - the Pope ex-communicated Queen Elizabeth I for her persecution of Catholics and Guy Fawkes was born. He, as we all know, concocted the Gunpowder Plot in 1605, when this building was just 35 years old!

The building itself is as impressive as its history too. Blackdog Antiques can be found in the Market Place, Halesworth, just 9 miles from Southwold and the wonderful Suffolk Heritage Coast. The town itself has a pedestrianised thoroughfare featuring lots of small independent businesses but head towards the church and you will come across the Medieval Market Place, Blackdog sits proudly at the top end. The beautiful Tudor building formerly a Merchant's house has undergone major restoration and is a treat to see as a lover of antiques or a home buyer.

The ground floor comprises four huge showroom areas, a WC, two inner lobbies, a cellar room and three store rooms. The first floor is similarly impressive with a landing, four separate rooms used as offices, workshops, and for storage. The second floor has two huge rooms measuring over 55 feet in length in total, boasting panoramic views from its windows, under a fantastic trussed roof.

It's not often that a property of this calibre comes on the market, with a prestigious history and huge potential for the future, the possibilities are endless.

Agents notes...

A pre-recorded walkaround tour is available for this property. Current rateable value is £14,500.

The building has a significant and potentially adaptable floor area. Current permission allows for a mix of commercial and residential use, although not suitable for residential use as it stands, the building could move to wholly residential use subject to a formal planning application. Any application could include the removal of later rear ground floor additions and informal roofing to create an attractive rear courtyard amenity space. Internally, the generous overall floor area and large individual floors could deliver a spectacular and distinctive dwelling.

As the building is listed Grade II* by English Heritage no works, internally or externally, should be undertaken without prior consent.
