The property

This charming mid-19th-century maisonette offers an intriguing blend of period features and modern conveniences, thoughtfully restored by its current owners to revive its original allure. Situated in a historic pocket of Brighton, this property not only boasts a storied past, including a stint as a doctor's surgery, but also shines as a versatile home with its spacious layout spread across three floors and a private entrance that enhances the feeling of living in a house.

Ground Floor: Step into the inviting ground floor through your own front door, where two generous reception rooms offer a warm welcome and showcase some of the property's period features - including beautiful Egg and Dart coving. At the front of the home, a spacious living room features a curved bay window that overlooks the street, filling the space with natural light. Original folding doors lead to an adjoining reception room, currently set up as a dining room but equally suited to become a cosy library. Together, these rooms create an ideal setting for relaxing or entertaining friends and family. A recently fitted kitchen, only two years old, brings a touch of contemporary style, with high-quality appliances and ample workspace for cooking enthusiasts. Adjacent to the kitchen is a well-organised boot and coat room, with plumbing ready to add a WC and basin if desired. The boiler has been regularly serviced and safety-checked, ensuring warmth and peace of mind through the winter months.

First Floor: Attractive stairs with a stylish striped runner lead up to the first floor, providing charm and character as they guide you to the upper levels. The first floor features a luxurious bathroom with a free-standing bath and a cutting-edge digital shower, adding a touch of spa-like relaxation to your routine. A partially boarded loft above the bathroom provides a useful space for seasonal storage, ideal for suitcases, holiday decorations, and other essentials. A large cupboard on the landing, with plumbing and drainage for a stacked washing machine and tumble dryer, offers a practical solution to free up kitchen space. The principal bedroom, originally the drawing room, exudes historical charm with its spacious layout and Victorian-style feature fireplace. Here, the large window presents views down the street and towards the sea. An additional double bedroom offers a comfortable retreat, with plenty of space for a double bed and wardrobes.

Second Floor: Ascend to the top floor, where versatility meets comfort and tranquillity. A well-proportioned double bedroom comes complete with an ensuite shower and WC, offering privacy and convenience for guests or family members. Adjacent to this is a fitted office, perfectly suited for remote work or creative pursuits. A dormer window adds to the room's appeal, offering charming views over the rooftops of Brighton. Generous under-eaves storage at the front and back, as well as a loft space, adds impressive storage capacity, allowing for easy organisation throughout the home.

With its blend of historical character and thoughtful modern updates, this property is so much more than you'd expect from a maisonette. It is a rare find in a highly desirable area.
