Location

The property is situated in a quiet, rural location about a mile west of the A4137, which connects to the A40 at Whitchurch to the south and then on to the M50 and wider motorway network.

Description

Trehumfrey Farmhouse is a detached stone and slate roofed 3 storey house, dating back to the 1600s, and originally understood to have been a coaching inn. There are gardens to the sides and rear, the house is set above The Garren river and has attractive rural views across the permanent pasture that runs down to the riverside frontage. There are a range of traditional and more modern steel framed buildings.

Accommodation

Services

The property is connected to mains water and electricity, with drainage to a septic tank. PLEASE NOTE the water supply is via a long private pipe from the A4137, shared three other properties, Solomons, The Bungalow and Barnfield. The purchasers of the farmhouse will be responsible for the cost of maintaining and repairing the pipe, the cost of which is to be split equally with Barnfield and The Bungalow. In the event that Barnfield or The Bungalow disconnect from the supply, they will no longer be required to contribute. The purchasers of the farmhouse will also be responsible for paying the Welsh Water bill relating to water consumed and re-charging Barnfield and The Bungalow. Further details are available from the agents.
