Description

Situated above the vibrant energy of Haverstock Hill, this two-bedroom apartment offers a bright, elevated space with a sense of distance from the street, while remaining firmly connected to one of North London's most dynamic neighbourhoods. The layout is straightforward and practical: two well-sized double bedrooms, a bathroom, and a living area filled with abundant natural light and generous proportions. The apartment feels inviting and functional with a central hallway connecting all the rooms. There is also a large attic space that adds an unexpected layer of practicality, ideal for storage. The building dates back to the late nineteenth century and so the property retains its charming, period features as well as being a home that functions well. Located just moments from Belsize Park Underground Station (Northern Line), and close to Hampstead Heath, Primrose Hill, independent cafés, and local amenities. The property benefits from a location that consistently attracts both owner-occupiers and renters. With its prime position, versatile layout, and desirable address, it offers strong rental appeal and exciting potential for the future.
