This characterful 11th century grade II listed manor house with accommodation approaching 4700 sq ft is situated in the semi-rural village of Asheldham and boasts a wealth of charm with exposed beams, studwork and brickwork as well as feature fireplaces and decorative panelling.

The accommodation is spread over four floors including a cellar. The ground floor commences a sun room, reception hall with doors to the drawing room with original panelling and open brick fireplace, sitting room with authentic bay window, dining room leading into the kitchen, a separate utility room and cloak room.

The first floor landing provides access to five of the eight bedrooms, with bedroom one measuring a generous 22'8" x 15'5" and bedroom three benefitting from an en-suite bathroom. The first floor also benefits from a family bathroom and separate shower room and WC.

To the third floor, there is a landing with access to an additional bathroom for the remaining three bedrooms.

There is also a ground floor self contained annex with private access via its own entrance door which provides an additional kitchen, bathroom, bedroom and lounge.

Externally the property is approached by a large driveway and has parking for numerous vehicles and a detached garage to the side. The well-maintained grounds surrounding the property are approximately 1.9 acres, mainly laid to lawn with various trees and shrubs, as well as a paved patio seating area to enjoy overlooking the idyllic setting.

Surrounding Areas and Amenities

Just a short drive from Asheldham is the larger village of Southminster, around 3 miles to the north. Southminster provides essential amenities such as a small supermarket, post office, pubs, and a train station, which connects residents to London Liverpool Street in about an hour and a quarter - perfect for commuters who work in the city but crave countryside living. Southminster is also home to several local schools, making it convenient for families with children.
