Holcombe is situated between the seaside resorts of Dawlish and Teignmouth, growing from a largely agricultural village into a home for those that commute to Exeter and Torbay. The village has a church, two pubs (The Castle Inn and the Smugglers Inn on the coast road) and a village hall. This strong community offers a variety of clubs from indoor bowls to a garden society. Both Teignmouth and Dawlish offer an extensive range of day-to-day conveniences, with railway connections to Exeter and London. Coastal walks are always favoured in this area via Smugglers Lane down to the beach along the sea walk into Teignmouth along with stunning woodland walks at Mamhead and in the Haldon Forest or east along the coast path.
