PEROLA DA CRUZ

Eco-chic design.

The new residential projects in Cape Verde represent a perfect combination of sustainability and design, offering eco-chic apartments that integrate harmoniously with the surrounding natural environment.

The buildings are constructed according to the principles of eco-sustainability, using local materials such as stone and wood that reflect the natural beauty of the island.

Every detail is designed to respect and enhance the environment: wooden furniture made by local artisans, woven jute and rope floor coverings, and native plants such as palm trees and oleanders. Minimal design in a pure and authentic environment.

Sustainability is at the heart of these projects: photovoltaic systems ensure a renewable energy supply, while greywater purification systems allow a responsible use of water resources.

Railings in aluminium or marine steel are chosen for their resistance to the effects of saltiness, guaranteeing safety and durability.

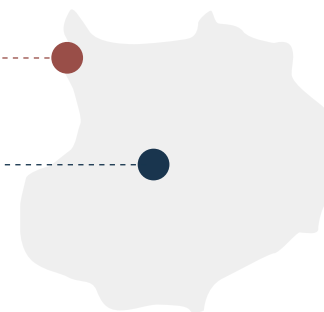

Choosing these apartments means embracing a new way of living, respecting and celebrating nature without sacrificing comfort and elegance, perfectly in harmony with the unspoilt beauty of Cape Verde.
