Property Description

If you have not yet had the pleasure of visiting this unique road, then prepare to encounter a hidden treasure. The whole row of Grade II listed terraced houses appears to have been transplanted in its entirety from another time, and as you turn down the tree-lined street you would be forgiven for thinking you had walked onto the set of a BBC period drama.

Our one-bedroom ground floor apartment is, alas, not as enchanting as the exterior, with numerous travesties having been committed against the property's many precious features. A polystyrene ceiling cuts off the high ceilings and the glorious sash windows; the walls of the lounge look like they've been decorated for set of a school play and the kitchen and bathroom both needs replacing. It is, undoubtedly, a project. But oh, the reward of seeing such a beautiful flat restored!

Even with the work required there is so much on offer, not just in the incredible attractions of the street but, to the rear as well, where you will find a communal garden reached by a grand flight of stairs. Stand atop these stairs with the imposing rear door behind you and admire the way the staircases of all the adjoining houses line up looking over the matching lawns, all lined with mature trees: the symmetry and tranquillity is, again, from another time, offering a picturesque retreat. Located between Oxton and Claughton the property also benefits from an abundance of amenities as well as fabulous transport links. Book a viewing today!
