Understood to date back to the 19th century, this traditional Victorian end of terrace town house is built of red brick construction with a white brick facade beneath a slate roof. In more recent years, the property has been the subject of further improvement and updating and now results in a charming home offered with no onward chain and retaining features including wooden flooring and fireplaces. Benefiting from gas fired central heating and double glazing, the accommodation in brief comprises of an entrance hall with door to sitting room with fireplace and bay window to front. The separate dining room is an ideal reception for entertaining with stairs off to first floor and door to the well equipped kitchen, fitted with a modern range of units and plenty of space for appliances. The cellar has been converted and currently used as a spacious third bedroom.

On the first floor is a landing leading to the two spacious double bedrooms served by the family bathroom with bath and separate shower enclosure.

Outside

To the front of the house is a traditional town garden contained within the original white brick wall with decorative iron railing and original iron gateway. Side access leads in turn to the rear garden. The large garden is laid predominantly to lawn, with a central patio area, all bordered by the original red brick wall and close bordered panelling fencing. The garden extends to approximately 95ft in length including a brick built outhouse adjoining the rear of the property, with functioning toilet and sink, making the garden ideal for gatherings & BBQ'S.

The property occupies a prominent setting along this popular road which comprises mostly of Victorian and Edwardian town houses, providing convenient access to the excellent range of schooling, shopping, cultural and recreational facilities the historic cathedral town of Bury St Edmunds has to offer. Bury St Edmunds is famously known as the 'Jewel in the Crown of Suffolk' with a distinct reputation for bringing together the best of old and new, with its rich history and its broad range of venues for dining, shopping and relaxing.
