Great House, Llandow

Architecture and History

Dating from the late 16th Century Great House is listed Grade II and described as a good example of a sub-medieval gentry house and part of an 'outstanding ensemble' along with Church Farm and the Church of the Holy Trinity in the Llandow Conservation Area. The house was modified in the 18th Century when a symmetrical front in the Georgian style was formed whilst the kitchen wing retained its 16th Century layout. It is a L plan Direct Entry house with five bays and some of the Tudor features are retained internally.

Great House was built in about 1590 by Thomas Powell, Lord of the Manor of Llandow who held the office of Sheriff of Glamorgan in 1596 and 1608. It remained in the Powell family until the death of his grandson, Rev Edward Powell when the property passed to his daughter Cecil. In 1751 Cecil had secretly married Thomas Picton of Poyston, Pembrokeshire at Reynard's Cave, Tresillian Bay. As well as being heiress to the Llandow Estate Cecil was also inheritrix of the property of her Grandfather Edward Turbervill of Sutton, Llandow and later Ewenny Priory. Cecil and Thomas had twelve children, three of whom became generals, including General Sir Thomas Picton whose checkered career ended when he was the highest ranking officer to be killed in the battle of Waterloo.

The house and farm was owned by the Picton family until 1898 when it was sold to Richard Bevan for £6,800. It came into the current ownership when acquired by Levi Phillips, General Manager of the Ocean Coal Company, in 1947. On the death of the tenant, Russell Thomas, in 1955 his son Tudor Phillips took over the house and farm and undertook a major refurbishment of the property. He married Katie Thomas, daughter of Herbert R Thomas of Cowbridge, and made Great House their family home until his recent death. Tudor Phillips was the first owner occupier of Great House since the Powells in the mid 18th Century.
