Lapford is one of the larger villages in Mid Devon and as such, has plenty to offer. Sat on the hillside, with southerly views to Dartmoor over the rolling Devon hills, the village has excellent transport links with a regular bus service and train station, plus the A377 is less than a mile away. There's a popular pub, primary school and community hub, plus a petrol station with a shop.

Hoplea Side is believed to have got its name from the adjacent field – Hoplea and as such, has enviable views to the rear of the property over the fields and surrounding countryside. Originally 2 cottages (they were combined in 1995), the house now offers flexible and spacious accommodation over two floors. The configurations are endless with multiple reception rooms, five bedrooms and two bathrooms.

Still served by two staircases, the house can be used as one large house or indeed, it would work well as a house with an annexe (ideal for relatives and/or income potential) or the house could even be put back to two homes (stp). Although dated, the house has been well looked after and isn't listed. On the ground floor are three or four reception rooms/areas and the kitchen/dining room. There's a useful utility room plus a bathroom on the ground floor. The first floor is home to five bedrooms in total with a bathroom but as mentioned, with the two staircases, there's plenty of options as to how the spaces are used. The whole house has oil fired heating and open fires. There's a surprising amount of light from the south facing windows, plus the eastern elevation also benefits from the light as well as providing views (not commonly seen from the village!).

Outside, to the front is a south facing garden with paved pathways. The garden is elevated from the village road adding to privacy and is a bit of a blank canvas for a new owner to take on. Adjacent to the rear of the house is the garage and further garden (behind the wall) which adds storage or parking to the house and, subject to permissions, could be re-configured to create additional parking too.

This is a wonderful home, full of space and options either to use as one or as a house with annexe or even two cottages again – it's up to you!
