Set amidst the glorious rolling fields of Mid Devon, Hill Farm sits surrounded by its own ring fenced land at the end of a private lane. This striking house consisting as it does of 48 acres of fields, mixed woodland and formal gardens filled the brief of the current owners who sought an unlisted house in a private peaceful setting. Though never listed, it is believed to originate in the 17th century and it is recorded in the Domesday that a house stood on the land then but happily has evolved through many changes, to the fantastic light filled home it is today. Its position, conveniently located to Exeter, Dartmoor and the beaches at North and South Devon is not to be underestimated.

The House -

As you approach the house from the drive which sweeps in through the old farmstead barns, it's a breathtaking moment.

The L-shaped elevations of the property, with its stunning wisteria and grand proportions give a glimpse into how special this home really is. Laid out over two floors, the house works as one large house or indeed as two houses, each with their own facilities, entrances and staircases so the options on how to use the space is extremely flexible. Throughout, the property it is evident that materials used have been curated for quality and longevity. The use of English elm flooring, bespoke oak doors, (acknowledging the history of the house), oak double glazed replacement windows (where fitted) and, now rare, Spanish hand cut tiles sit just right in this 4,500sq foot home. It's on mains water with private drainage and has oil fired central heating to period style radiators, (underfloor in the kitchen), with additional underfloor heating to bathrooms and boot room. With its seven nominated bedrooms and five bathrooms, together with numerous reception rooms this will suit a range of buyers.

Gardens and Pool -

The gardens surround the house with areas of lawn, zoned for various uses including a flat lawn for ball games. Extensive use of granite setts used in edging the Oyster slate terracing with its sheen and light reflecting quality appeals to outdoor living. This is repeated in the swimming pool surround. The solar heated pool is 12m by 6m and can heat up to 28 degrees. The solid log cabin built by local craftsmen, has underfloor heating and with showers, WC and even a sauna, its a brilliant bespoke edition. It's an ideal pool room but a flexible space and can be used as a gym, cinema and studio, or entertaining. Surrounded by hedging for privacy and shelter, it's located to the south of the house and is the perfect summer escape and being slightly away from the house, is an ideal set up. The house sits in gardens of just over an acre.

The barns –

The barns sit to the west of the main house in a plot of approximately two and a half acres. A mixture of traditional cob barns and stabling with some more modern block additions, there's a range of options for storage or potential conversion. To the north of the barn complex, with a spurred access, is a detached, steel framed barn. Currently used for storage and workshops, the barns have a huge amount of potential to create ancillary or separate accommodation (subject to planning), or offices/studios/gyms, the options are vast. It's worth noting that no overage is being sought by the owners regarding the barns.

The land –

For many, the land will be a key factor in this property's appeal. In total, the extent of the boundary extends to approximately forty-eight acres, taking off the gardens and barns, then there's about forty-five acres remaining for farmland. The house sits well within the boundary and with the barns to the west, the land extends to the north, east and south with a total of seven or eight fields and a few acres of native woodland. The land borders a small stream on the eastern boundary. The land hasn't been farmed for a few years and for the past 20 years or so, has been treated organically so it's a wonderful haven for flora, fauna and butterflies.

Agents' Note: There is a little used public footpath which runs along a hedge line which isn't visible from the house and gardens.
